The New Poor Law

Study the following sources and then answer the questions which follow.

From the Report of the Royal Commission on the Poor Laws, 1834

The first and most essential of all conditions is that the pauper's situation shall not be made as eligible as the situation of the independent labourer of the

The chief measures which are recommended are:

First, that except as to medical attendance, all relief whatever to able-bodied persons or to their families, otherwise than in well-regulated workhouses, shall be declared unlawful and shall cease. All who receive relief from the parish should work for the parish exclusively, as hard and for less wages than independent labourers work for individual employers.

From the Second Annual Report of the Poor Law Commissioners, 1836
It could not be expected that the new Poor Law could possibly be carried into effect without difficulty and resistance. That the pauper labourers themselves should adopt this course was naturally to be anticipated. In many districts they set themselves without much delay, fairly and honestly, to seek a livelihood by their own industry. In other places, where a reliance on the poor rate had become engrafted in the manners and habits of the labouring population, every method has been resorted to for the purpose of impeding the operation

From An Article on the Principles and Progress of the Poor Law Amendment Act by Edwin Chadwick, 1837

When the overseers of Uckfield Poor Law Union in Sussex met for the purpose of making a poor rate, it was found that instead of 5 shillings or 6 shillings [25 or 30p], as had hitherto been the case, a rate of 1s 6d [7p] would be amply sufficient. Here, then, was upwards of £1000 left in the hands of the ratepayers to meet the demands of such labourers as were willing to earn it; on the other hand there were two workhouses for able-bodied men who were out of employment, with regular hours, regular diet, no beer, no tobacco, strict supervision and the irksome task of picking oakum.

The effect was almost magical. The labourers began to think, to use their own expression, it was high time to 'look out'. Employment was now sought after.

source 4 From Essays on Poor Relief by Nassau Senior, 1841

The total amount of the poor rates for 1834 was £7.5m., that for 1840 was £5.1m. We attach, however, comparatively little importance to the financial results of the Poor Law Amendment Act. We are grateful to the Commissioners not for having saved £2.4m. a year, but for having stopped the progress of the plague of destitution and improved the morals of the people. The general result is that the labourer, finding himself no longer entitled to a fixed income, whatever his idleness or misconduct, becomes stimulated to work and honesty by the double motivation of hope and fear.

From The Condition of the Working Classes by Friedrich Engels, 1844

Since the rich have all the power, the working classes must submit to have the law declare them as not required. This has been done by the New Poor Law. The regulation of these Poor Law Bastilles is such as to frighten away everyone who has the slightest prospect of life without this form of public charity. The workhouse has been made the most repulsive residence which man can invent.
